DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-7, 9-17 and 19-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Chen US Patent No. 6,416,531 in view of Neuberger et al. US Patent No. 6,503,268.

Chen discloses a phototherapeutic apparatus and method of use, the apparatus comprising: a light source 26; and a beam splitter 28 featuring a multiple radiation output port adapted to accept a plurality of waveguides 30a-30e (see Fig. 1). In alternative embodiment, Chen discloses a multiple of probes, each comprising a plurality of LED's (see Figs. 3-5C).

Chen does not teach a control means for control the output of the light source 26 or for independently controlling the light LED. However, the use of control mechanism for controlling the output of treatment light sources is known in the art. Neuberger et al. disclose an alternative treatment apparatus and method of use, the apparatus comprising a plurality of laser diodes that can be independently powered and thus controlled, a power supply for powering the laser diodes, and a programmable controller operatively connected to the laser diodes connected and the power supply to control the output of the light source (see col. 2, lines 47-49; col. 4 lines 11-17; and col. 5, lines 2-4). Therefore, at the time of the applicant's invention, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to modify Chen in view of Neuberger et al. and use a control means to control the output power of the light source(s).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed on July 9, 2010, have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The applicant states that claims 1, 19, 21, and 22 of the instant application recite a medical device comprising a means for independently and simultaneously controlling the power output levels of individual radiation ports. The applicant further argues that Chen fails to teach or suggest a means for independently and simultaneously controlling the output power of the individual light source as claimed. The applicant further argues that the secondary reference, Neuberger, would not cure the deficiency of Chen and the combination of the two references would render Chen inoperative.

In response to the applicant's arguments, the examiner recognizes and agrees with the applicant that Chen does not teach a control means for individually controlling the output of light emitting diodes. However, as stated in the last Office Action, the use of a control mechanism for independently and simultaneously controlling the output of multiple light sources is known in the art. With respect to the argument that combining the two references would render Chen inoperative,

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
